
Kendal, Cumbria, England

Stricklandgate House 01539-742600
92 Stricklandgate, Kendal, Cumbria LA9 4PU
www.syvendedagskristne.no

Kendal, Cumbria is at the southern entrance to the Lake District, a hilly and scenic area in the north of England. Kendal itself has many attractions with different zoos, Beatrice Potter exhibitions, steam trains, and sheep shearing events. It also has a large indoor leisure center for all the family to enjoy. There are several castles in the area and many picturesque villages to visit.

How to get there: The mainline trains run from London (Euston Station) to Glasgow (Scotland). There is a local train from Preston to Windermere; this train stops at Oxenholme, which is a station on the mainline from London to Glasgow.

For those traveling by car, you will find Kendal along the M6 motorway, which runs from Manchester to Carlisle and on to Glasgow in Scotland. You take route 590 from exit 36

Where to stay: Kendal has many Hotels and Guest Houses as well as a number of self-catering establishments. See the Feast Links online for information on lodging establishments in Kendal and the surrounding area. The nearest hotel to Stricklandgate House is the Premier Inn Kendall Central. It is a few minutes walk away from the hall. Please book your own accommodations. For more information, email info@kendaltic.co.uk